Chain of Command – Communicating with School Officials

Parents are often discouraged when they attempt to communicate with central office administrators and are sent back to building-based officials in order to resolve a problem their child may be experiencing in school. To prevent that frustration, parents can follow the “Chain of Command” below, to begin the communication sequence regarding their child’s problem. Many parental questions can be easily and completely answered by communicating directly with the educator in charge of the class or program.

Each parental inquiry should first be addressed at whatever level the initial action was taken, with appeals moving on to the next level on the chain of command. We have included telephone numbers and emails for an easy reference for parents – and encourage phone calls as the preferable method of communication.
